Preventing your skin from aging, preserving its natural beauty, losing weight... while lots of these worries are about appearance, they can also be a source of major insecurities.

Nutricosmetics are just what you need! These food supplements, which are taken orally, act in synergy with topically applied cosmetics. They provide a deeper-down action and are capable of triggering endogenous production. The health benefits are numerous and primarily target the structure and appearance of the skin, hair and nails, as well as weight, cellulite or detoxification of the body.

As a major nutricosmetics player, the BIOCYTE laboratory proposes food supplements containing essential nutrients with well-known effects. In addition, BIOCYTE laboratory has an extremely rigorous quality and safety policy. The choice of ingredients and dosages, as well as the manufacture and traceability of the supplements therefore meet the most stringent European regulations, making the BIOCYTE nutricosmetics range a natural, effective and safe solution for those seeking inner well-being that is visible on the outside!
1. Farcoderm, placebo-controlled clinical trial on Glycoserum EF®, 30 women, average age 54.2 years, 350 mg per day, 3 months, 2014.

3. Reduces redness

The skin: a complex organ

The skin contains 2 proteins:

- elastin for suppleness and elasticity;
- collagen for density and resistance.

The fibres of these two proteins are closely intertwined with one another, forming a strong, stretchy mesh. Hyaluronic acid fills in this mesh, giving the skin a moisturised, replumped appearance, and increases elastin and collagen synthesis.

These 3 substances form the skin’s essential building blocks. But with age, their production naturally decreases. So it is important to supplement them beyond the age of 25: topically to moisturise the epidermis and orally to act on the dermis.

Skin aging is caused by three phenomena

1. Reduction in the natural production of hyaluronic acid, collagen and elastin.
2. Glycation (Maillard reaction): spontaneous reaction causing the glycoxidation of sugars with a high glycemic index carried in the blood, including AGE (Advanced Glycation End products), leading to stiffening of collagen and elastin and causing the skin to lose its suppleness.

Skin aging causes reduction of wrinkle depth

Skin range
Specific

Acne, brown spots, dry skin, etc.
Various skin imperfections may be visible. Dull skin is a sign of both age and health. A radiant complexion depends on:
- a fine skin grain,
- an even skin texture and colour;
- smoothing of blemishes and contours (wrinkles, grooves, scars, shadows cast by texture and/or volume irregularities).

Dry skins

Dry Skin
Adult skin consists of 70% water, i.e. approximately 8 litres, representing 20% of the body’s total water content. This proportion varies depending on age. When it is dry, skin loses its elasticity, softness and suppleness. It becomes dull and thin and feels tight. This is a result of dehydration and loss of skin lipids, influenced by climatic, lifestyle, medicinal or illness-related factors.

*Results concerning the active ingredient SkinAx2®, clinical trial conducted by CERT (Department of Dermatology – Besançon regional university hospital centre) on 35 women with a dull complexion for 8 weeks.

Damaged nails

BROWN SPOTS
Brown spots on the skin, also called pigment spots or hypermelanosis, are caused by an overload or abnormal distribution of melanin in the skin. These imperfections may be caused by an increase in the number of melanocytes or an increase in the amount of melanin in the epidermis without any change in the number of melanocytes.

Acne is usually considered to be a teenage problem, but it seems to be becoming increasingly common in adults. The potential causes identified include genetic factors, stress, the use of cosmetics and sun exposure. Smoking and premenstrual inflammatory episodes appear to be aggravating factors.
